WHEN J. PIERPONT MORGAN DREW TO A PAIR OF KINGS

A New York dispatch of August 7, says:

"Speculating in the stock of the United States Steel Corporation, King Edward of England has just cleared more than $1,000,000 as the harvest of a three months bullish market for the steel issues. The story was given out today in Wall street and much comment was made on the significant fact that the king's agents placed this commission immediately after a visit paid him by J. Pierpont Morgan, who knows considerable about steel. Not only has the crowned head of England profited by the speculation in Wall street, but it became known that German royalty has been buying steel and other American stocks."

Commenting on this incident Gov. Haskell in his New State Tribune says:

"Do you realize what it means?"

"Some years ago American manufacturers realized that the infant manufacturing industries of the United States had become so numerous and strong that the competition among them must be destroyed and thereupon they proceeded to unite the separate factories into great corporations, commonly called trusts. As an illustration, the United States Steel company today embraces some one hundred and twenty-two separate plants with a total capitalization more than six times as great as the former separate capitalization. This monopoly at home destroyed local competition and an import tariff duty shut out foreign competitors, but the wily schemer of Wall Street sees that the mass of the people will not much longer tolerate tariff protection of trusts and monopolies. He sees that President Taft was not satisfied with the recent effort to revise the tariff and that further reductions are inevitable. That at no distant date the monopolies of America must meet the competition of the world in our home markets and this is suggested: That the trust statutes of the United States shall cease to be his license to rob the consumer. Taking time by the forelock then the question is simple. Can such monopoly as the United States Steel Company in our own country enlarge their sphere of influence by extending their right of ownership or power of dictation over the like industries of European countries. And to begin with, Mr. Morgan, the dominating agent of the United States Steel Company seeks to strengthen his hand by drawing a pair of kings and what more artful way than to make that king a million profit on an imaginary transaction? Mr. Morgan would think it indelicate to make the king a gift of a million dollars, hence, just in a friendly way he suggests an investment in United States Steel company stock on the New York Stock Exchange, which he is sure will rise in value to the great profit of the king.

"And it rose. Certainly it rose. It was bound to rise. Could Mr. Morgan afford a loss to the king. Having advised the King to invest in stocks in his own country and in a company under Mr. Morgan's dictation, the king never had more certain chance to win."

"Now reader, watch the future. Mr. Morgan never made a million dollars for a king in his life without some selfish motive to be served and the future will develop that the United States Steel Company expects to extend into England and Germany and establish relations of ownership or influence with its competitors of Europe that will enable that company to continue in the future as it did last year to earn close to forty per cent net profit on its actual investment and you who buy the products of the iron furnace will long have reason to remember the day when Mr. Morgan drew this pair of kings."

OKLAHOMA FARMERS UNION ADOPT PLAN FOR COTTON

A CENTRAL AGENCY UNDER CONTROL OF STATE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE—CENTRAL CO-OPERATION ASSOCIATION.

President of Unions of Four States to Take a Good Roads Junket Over Northeastern States at Expense of Colonel Yoakum.

Shawnee, Ok., Aug. 19.—With the adoption of the report of the joint committee on cotton plan, the matter was settled as far as present session of the Farmers' Union is concerned. The report as adopted is as follows:

1. That we favor the establishment of a central selling agency, under the direct control of the state executive committee of the Farmers' Union of Oklahoma.
2. That a central co-operative association be organized and other co-operative associations of the Farmers' Union of Oklahoma.
3. That said local warehouse association and other co-operative associations shall make their own rules and regulations to govern the central co-operative association.
4. That the State executive committee of the Farmers' Union of Oklahoma shall be required to institute ways and means for the organization at the earliest possible moment, of said central co-operative association.
5. That the said central selling agent shall be employed by the executive committee, and he shall be the authorized representative of the central co-operative association in the management and superintendency of the handling and sale of farm products.
6. That the state executive committee be authorized to provide plans for the organization of local co-operative associations to protect and assist the members of the Farmers' Union in the sale of the minor products and all other products, and in the selling of the goods of life and in the exchange of farm products with each other.
7. That the matter of financing the central selling agent, in order to give financial standing in the markets, be left entirely with the warehouse associations.

Former President Duckworth of the National union, who is chairman of the legislative committee and attending this convention as the personal representative of President Barrett, made a plain talk to the farmers during consideration of the report.

"A Good Roads Rooter."

The good roads movement, as presented by Mr. Yoakum of the Rock Island-Frisco system assumed a tangible form when Frank Anderson, industrial agent of that System, proposed that President Garrison submit the plans to the Farmers' Union president of Texas, Louisiana and Arkansas. It was agreed that the party would leave the Southwest some time after Sept. 15, guests of Mr. Yoakum and at his personal expense. A stop would be made at Indianapolis in which state there is a great deal of finely constructed road. A call will be made on the secretary of Agriculture in Washington, who will assign a road engineer to the party and trips will follow through New York, Connecticut and Massachusetts, the States containing the best highway systems in the world. The trip will consume about three weeks.

Mr. Anderson says that Mr. Yoakum is a "good road rooter," believing that highway development is as essential as railroad development. As he told the Farmers' Union, when an ambitious town wants to give a large money bonus to a railroad to insure its building, the railroad should limit its acceptance to the right to pass through the town and require the town to spend the remainder of the bonus in improving the country roads leading to that center.

Revolting Confession.

Pawhuska, Ok., Aug. 19.—Bert Blumefield, an alleged lover of Mrs. I. P. Brown, charged with complicity in the murder of her husband, near Bliss, last April has been arrested, making three people now involved.

The most revolting feature of today's confessions by Arthur Brown was his statement that while his father's body was burning in the brush heap after the murder, Mrs. Brownboiled coffee over the same fire and sat down and drank it as the burning flesh crackled in the blaze.

"Boss of All Creation."

Washington, Aug. 19.—Secretary of Agriculture, James Wilson, in his annual report, just made public, comes very near showing that the "poor farmer," so much talked about in recent tariff debates, is the boss of all creation. The increase in the money value of the various crops makes the figures given the largest in the world's history.

The farm products crop for 1908 totals the enormous sum of $7,778,000 which, the Secretary declares is $290,000,000 above the value for 1907. During the last ten years the wealth production of the farms of this country has exceeded the fabulous amount of $60,000,000,000.

Greatest of all crops is Indian corn. The value of this crop is $1,615,000,000.

Converted to State Banks.

Guthrie, Ok., Aug. 19.—Bank Commissioner Young announces the conversions of two more National banks to state institutions, the State Guaranty Bank of Geary, which was formerly the First National Bank with $25,000 capital stock.

The City National bank of Mangum converts to the City State Bank capital stock $25,000.

C. G. Jones for Governor.

Oklahoma City, Aug. 19.—C. G. Jones, "farmer," promoter, railroad builder and capitalist, has announced that he will seek the gubernatorial nomination before the republican primaries next year.

For the past two years Mr. Jones has been talked of as a possibility and among his friends it has been known that he was at least "receptive," but never before has he made any statement that he would be an active candidate.

That Jones will be a strong candidate is generally conceded. Since the early days of Oklahoma territory he has been active in the republican party. He was a member of the first and several other territorial legislatures, where he was a leader of the minority in the lower house.

Registrar of Land Office.

Shawnee, Ok., Aug. 16.—National Committeeman C. M. Cade has given his indorsement for Registrar of Lawton Land Office to R. Bert Roberts of that place. The position was made vacant Tuesday by the death of Col. Henry McKnight. Mr. Roberts was Registrar of the Mangum land office at the time of its close, and has been with the Lawton branch since.

Clint Graham Acting Governor.

Guthrie, Ok., Aug. 19.—Clint Graham of Marietta, president pro tem of the Oklahoma senate, is acting governor at the present time, during the absence of both Gov. Haskell and Lieut. Gov. Bellamy from the State, the former attending the ad men's convention in St. Joseph, Mo., and the latter in Colorado.

OKLAHOMA SIFTINGS.

The Muskogee Phoenix reports a temperature, official, of 115 degrees on Tuesday, "which about wins the money in the national contest."

The thermometer in the stereotyping room of the Western Newspaper Union at Muskogee went up to 130 degrees and burst the mercury tube, on Tuesday.

Durant voted on a school tax a few weeks ago and the vote was a tie. Tuesday they voted again and this time education won by a majority of 68.

The Durant News says a thermometer placed in the sun there got up to 120, which was the top of the tube, and the owner took it in in order to save the instrument.

Bill Murray and Cash Cade met in Shawnee the other day and jollied each other about being candidates for governor on opposite tickets. Neither would "own up" to the aspiration.

Fish poisoners near Bartlesville killed the fish in a small lake, several thousand pounds of them, and now ten thousand buzzards are reported as hovering over the vicinity. This fish poisoning is getting entirely too common and the game warden ought to take a hand.

George Gibson, foreman of the M.
K. & T. coal chutes at Muskogee, was notified the other day that he had fallen heir to $450,000. He didn't say much, but washed his hands, resigned his job and took the train for New York where the fortune awaits him.

The "death pact" alleged to have been formed among bootleggers and officials of Sapulpa is raising a lot of trouble up that way. The grand jury investigated and a local paper compared the probe to the Sanish Inquisition. For this he is threatened by attorneys with prosecution for contempt. There is an exodus of bootleggers and some officials are said to be "skeeered."

Durant News, Tuesday—The corner stone of the First Christian church was laid with impressive ceremonies. The services were conducted under the auspices of the Masonic Grand Lodge. Grand Secretary J.
S. Morrow, of Atoka, was present, and acting as Grand Master, officiated at the exercises. Other local and visiting Masons acted as temporary grand officers, and the corner stone was laid with all the pomp and ceremony attendant upon a grand lodge event.

SHERIFF'S REPRESENTATIVE REPLIES TO CRITICISMS

Since the earliest dawn of creation when the peckerwood uttered his first shrill chirp down to the last critical missive in the Ada Daily—a journal of boundless circulation—has there been an instance of such concerted action of county officials augmented by a few others of would be prominence, to concentrate their energies in bombarding the sheriff's office, seemingly to add new stars to their lead colored political crowns?
If their swords are not mightier than their pens, we are yet not frightened.
No one loves a knocker, and one of the most amiable attributes of human character is, to be able to know how to clean up around ones own door before tendering his services to scrape around his neighbor's door.

God, in his infinite wisdom, saw fit to make man and he regarded him as good, but later on in the scale of life we learn that man took a fall and it seems that he has never thoroughly picked himself up. Some have fallen so low that they seemingly extract pleasure from trying to jar others loose, that they may have company, or think that by so doing, it may ultimately be a little gain to themselves. He that hopes to add laurels to his own crown by plucking the same from another's will finally reach that status in the people's esteem that will make him a "Hewer of wood and carrier of water all the days of his life." The knocker never lived to knock out the man that he started in to knock.

Some men with political ambitions and aspirations remind me of some bugs, called June bugs, that I used to play with when a boy. The June bug is a good natured fellow and when you clothe him with a string, he remains in good humor and soars and the more string you give him the higher he soars. There is another bug nearly the same size and very similar in appearance but not a June bug, when you clothe him with a string he gets sullen and his next move is to try to turn over something and wind up the string, and finally goes into the ground; just so with some people who get elected to public office. When we clothe a man with official ropes, we love to see him soar higher and higher, like unto the June Bug, in his official duties, yet realizing that the people have hold of the other end and can at any time draw him back. The people are sometimes fooled, in the man as the boy is fooled in the bug, and get hold of one of those kind of men that represent the other bug, and he soon begins to nose around for something rotten and the result is, he soon rolls himself into his political casket.

The sheriff's office appreciates any advice tendered that will help the conditions, yet it reserves the right to exercise just so much of it as seemeth good. We compliment ourselves on our good luck, as it must just be good luck, since the management, according to the News, is so bad. In the face of all the scathing criticisms, both private and public, the sheriff's office continues with that dauntless courage that only true Americans possess to discharge their duties fearlessly, but honestly. Continuous and spontaneous falsehoods do not need a denial as they die within the radius of their own sphere.

We noticed in an issue of recent date, in bold head lines, that the much wanted George Warren had been captured but would not be brought to Ada jail on account of dreadful apprehensions. This negro has not yet been captured and the good citizenship deplore those kind of false statements, and we are sorry to have to say that the sheriff's office was placed in an embarrassed attitude over the affair, as interest was great and the callers were many, who repaired to the sheriff's office to know if it were true. Then we were asked why such statements were printed. We cannot believe this was done just for the few paltry pennies to be gained by selling a few more copies, and again when memory revolves backward a few cogs, when all Ada was in her greatest glee over the Normal, one little publication put her cork to bobbing and a great expense was incurred which prudence could have saved. And one of the most lamentable occurrences of recent date was a reproduction of the sad occurrence of March the 19th. Oh! that such scenes could be blotted from the memories of the people. Judging from an article in the issue of the 17th one would be constrained to believe that some of our good people would act as Supreme Dictator of Pontotoc County and one of the first acts of their administration would be to take charge of the sheriff's office, and convert the jail into a bastille and apply the rack and the guillotine on persons charged with crime but yet had no trial. "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden."

We feel confident that there is not a prison in our new state that has a more decent, clean, respectful and appreciative set of prisoners.

They are there awaiting trial and judgment, and not to be punished by the sheriff and guards, as some seem to think. We are sorry that the day guard had to be absent from the office to make some returns to the district clerk's office, just at a time when Judge Terrell on passing spied a man with two big watermelons waiting for the guards to deliver them to the prisoners, and his royal highness was shocked and he was made nervous over the situation.
Possibly the judge thought those melons contained dynamite.

"Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown."

Some people wear an imaginary crown. Only a few mornings ago, one of the county officials proceeded to round up one of the humble factors of the sheriff's office, and charged the office with being responsible for some valuable papers having been burned by one of the trustees, who was playing the part of janitor. The humble factor proceeded to investigate and found that the official had put them in the waste basket for convenience and left it on the floor by his easy chair over night for more convenience, and would not or did not inconvenience himself by explaining to the janitor. Now this janitor is a nice young man, who came into town hot and dry, and happened to meet one of Ada's citizens who furnished him with a little of Ada's best that was cool and wet, and after getting on the outside of a swig or two,
he felt good and strong and proceeded to give vent to his feelings and was finally invited up to visit Judge Brown, who persuaded him to stay over a while with us, and Joe consented. Joe is courteous and mannerly and discharges the duties assigned him with that vim and vigor that make all like him that know him. Now the question arises, is a waste basket made for the purpose of keeping valuable papers for convenience. Is it a janitor's business to peruse the contents of a waste basket, to ascertain if it contains something valuable? Is the sheriff's office responsible for another officer placing valuable papers in his waste basket and carelessly leaving them to be burned.

Is the sheriff's office the one target for incubating newspaper men and politicians, or the bulwark behind which they may conceal their own short comings by directing the attention elsewhere.

We invite the closest scrutiny of our work and management and an unbiased comparison of our county with others of our state in regard to the number and class of prisoners apprehended, but we deplore the fact those with so little information should assume the role of a public benefactor and give the greatest possible publicity to that which would not only bring discredit to those against whom it was directed, but to others who are interested until the facts will warrant the charges.

The sheriff's office is ready, willing and anxious to join forces with every officer in Pontotoc county for the improvement of every department but until we can have the co-operation of those higher in authority we feel that our efforts are in vain.

The First Bale.

The first bale of cotton to be brought to Ada arrived yesterday afternoon and was brought in by David Reynolds who lives eight miles west of Ada. The cotton was taken to the Rollow gin but as some repairs are under way there it could not be ginned but was left for later ginning. The bale was not sold as Mr. Reynolds expects a better price a little later.

A premium of $25 was subscribed by Ada business men as a reward to Mr. Reynolds. This bale is the third to be reported in the state.

Beautiful Porch Party.

Mesdames Lassater and Hope and Miss Fulton gave a delightful porch party last evening at the home of Mrs. Lassater in honor of Mrs. J. E. Meaders who will leave Ada on Friday for her new home in McAlester.

The guests were limited to old time friends and neighbors of Mrs. Meaders, several of whom came to live here at about the same time, nine years ago. Her friends are legion and all regret the removal of this excellent family from the city. Her near neighbors declare that they are all in mourning.

About forty guests were in attendance, the hours being from 5 to 7 o'clock, the time being largely occupied with the game of Forty-Two. The hostesses served a one-course luncheon consisting of a salad and an ice.

Among the out-of-town guests were: Mrs. Spawr of Phoenix, Arizona and Mrs. Benton of Oklahoma City, who are guests of Mrs. John McKinley; Mrs. LeGrave and Miss Whiteall of Macon, Georgia, guests of Mrs. Sherwood Hill, and Miss Wingo of Galveston who is a guest of her sister Miss Wingo of Sunrise addition.

For Miss Florence Furman.

One of the most enjoyable parties of the season was given last evening by Miss Olive Kice in honor of little Miss Florence Furman of Guthrie.

A Floral Contest was very much enjoyed by all the guests. Frank McCain winning the prize.

After several games a sheet was hung across one end of the room, the girls put their hands through holes in the sheet, the lights were turned low and the boys chose their partners for supper by selecting a hand. Then delicious refreshments were served.

After several selections of music the guests bid Olive and Florence good night, all agreeing that Olive was a charming little hostess and happy to have spent another evening with Florence. A GUEST.

Ada Opera House Company.

The organization of the Ada Opera House Company was perfected last night at the office of The Evening News, practically all of the stockholders being represented. The company was incorporated for $5,000. This is more than the amount necessary just now to complete work and leaves a margin of stock to be sold later on if necessary.

The following officers and directors were elected: R. W. Allen, president; F. S. Houpf, vice president; B. H. Mason, secretary-treasurer; R. E. Blanks, L. T. Walters, F. O. Harriss, W. S. Kerr.

The directors will proceed to close the proposed contract with the city whereby the third story is to be added to the city hall, now in course of erection, and used as an auditorium.

Birdwell Again in Jail.

Tom Birdwell is again in jail, having been turned in by his bondsmen this morning.

Birdwell was tried for murder some time ago and convicted, receiving a sentence of ten years. The case was appealed and he was allowed to give bond. But these bondsmen turned him in and he was placed in jail. On August 14 he again secured bond in the amount of $5,000 and was set at liberty, but for reasons that are not stated these bondsmen also turned him in and he is again in the county bastille.

NO WEDDING BELLS

FOR THE JUNIOR PARTNER AND THE STENOGRAPHER.

Mr. Branscombe Was Wealthy and Handsome and All That, But Miss Hawtrey Clung to Her Little $12 Per.

"But," urged Mr. Branscombe, the junior partner, after Miss Hawtrey, the beautiful stenographer, had said that she could not become his wife, "I can't understand why you refuse me. I am not an old man—that is, I hope I'm not old. Of course, some men are very old at my age; but I've tried to keep young, and at 35 no man has the right to feel that he is getting old. As for my financial standing, I can say that I am rich enough to insure you not only a comfortable home, but many of the luxuries that are dear to a woman."

"I haven't the least doubt about that," the lady replied. "If I were going to marry I should not wish my husband to be any younger than you are. A man of 35 ought to know his own mind. But, really, I wish you would not urge me any more."

"I—I—perhaps it is rather undignified for me to say so, but I hope I am not altogether unattractive as far as my personal appearance is concerned."

"Indeed, you are not, Mr. Branscombe. You are, if you will excuse me for saying so, a very handsome man." "Thank you—I thank you with all my heart, my dear Miss Hawtrey. And I hope my treatment of you has always been gentlemanly."

"If it had not been I should not have remained here."

"If you have any doubts concerning my past I can assure you that there is nothing in it which I should be ashamed to have you know about."

"That is a great deal for a man to be able to say to a woman."

"Yes. I am glad you take that view of it. May I hope that I shall be able in time to make you change your mind? I do not insist on a hasty marriage. If you will only give me any reason to feel encouraged I will wait and try to convince you that I am worthy of you?"

"Really, I must say at once that I do not desire you to go on treasuring any hope. I am sure that I shall not change my mind."

"Have you thought how much it would mean to you to be the mistress of a splendid home? To never have to bother about money? To have servants to do your bidding? To, in short, be the wife of a man of high standing in the community?"

"Yes, I've thought about all that. I prefer to remain as I am."

"I confess that I can't understand you. Your salary here is never likely to be any higher than it is at present, and you must often find it exceedingly difficult to get along on your income—to get the things that a woman naturally wishes to have in the way of clothes and that sort of thing, and then there is the necessity of coming into the city, rain or shine, to work among a lot of men who are not always, I fear, as respectful or as gallant as men ought to be in their dealing with ladies. Think how much better it would be to have a splendid home to preside over; to—"

"That's the very thing I don't want. If I had a home to preside over I should have to stick there day after day, with no chance to get out and be among people—to see the world—to be a part of it. Not for me, Willie."

"Miss Hawtrey, will you kindly return to your typewriter and get off the letters I dictated to you this forenoon? And don't forget that they are to be sent out to-day even if you have to remain at work till eight o'clock to-night. I have noticed recently that you have been taking three-quarters of an hour off at luncheon. Remember that you are to be absent only half an hour."

"The horrible old grouch," Miss Hawtrey muttered, as she returned to her work, "he wants the earth for $12 a week."

A High-Toned Umpire.

During the ball game between the newsboys and the bootblacks, on Murphy's vacant lot, the umpire had occasion to resent an unjust reflection on his character. "Youse to de club house!" he roared at the offending player.

"Den crawl in a sewer pipe and draw on yer imagination, youse lemon pie-faced mut!" cried the haughty official. "I ain't goin' ter change me style uv expression ter accommodate yer jay surroundin's!" — Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

"That's a very talented woman in there," meaning me. Now, what do you think of that?"

"I think," said he, "that he was hoping you might hear him and pay your rent."

Pinchot is Popular.

Denver, Colo., Aug. 19.—Chief Forester Pinchot carried popular favor here at the National Irrigation Congress and won the unanimous applause of the delegates in his speech setting forth plainly the "Roosevelt policies." Mr. Pinchot's address dwelt on conservation as a practical business policy. He said that the loss or injury of one great staple will not only injure that particular business, but will strike at the heart of many allied interests. He paid his compliments to Roosevelt.

Mr. Pinchot was introduced by Thos. F. Walsh, millionaire mine owner. In presenting the chief forester Mr. Walsh referred to him as a patriotic young American, who, rich in his own right, is devoting himself to the service of his country, and whose mistakes, if there are any, are those of the head and not of the heart. In return Mr. Pinchot spoke of the mine magnate as a "soldier of the common good," and wished for more of his kind.

In this mood, the congress listened with evident satisfaction. The so-called "enemies of Pinchotism" said they were satisfied with the conservation ideas of the speakers and joined in the cheering as lustily as did the adherents of the chief forester.

"Will Get the Scoundrels."

Muskogee Phoenix, Wednesday.—Governor Charles N. Haskell was in Muskogee last night. The executive felt in the best of spirits and said that he was in the best of health. He isn't worrying about the petition containing the sensational charges against United States Attorney Gregg and Special Prosecutor Rush.

"The petition said about all we have to say," the governor remarked when asked if there was any statement he wished to make regarding the filing of the motion. He said that beyond a doubt the charges would be taken further than their use in attempting to quash the indictments and that an effort would be made to punish Gregg and Rush. Governor Haskell intimated that he himself would push the action against them. "We're going to get the scoundrels," he declared. He also briefly referred to them as unmitigated rascals.

Federal Interference Improbable.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 19.—Treasury department officials say that Governor Haskell of Oklahoma will not get far with his protest to President Taft against the issuance of federal liquor license in Oklahoma.

Internal Revenue Commission Capers being out of the city, one of his assistants had this to say in reference to the Haskell request.

"We received and refused a similar request from South Dakota a few months ago. The law is plain; we issue a federal liquor tax receipt to any one who applies and pays the amount fixed by statute for selling liquor. It is not license to do business, but an evidence that the federal liquor tax law has been complied with. It does not give immunity to any man who undertakes to sell liquor in a state or section where the sale of liquor is prohibited.

"Instead of being an aid to violators, it ought to be an aid to the Oklahoma state officials in enforcing the law, in that it furnishes them with a clew as to who is probably selling liquor in the state.

"We do not look for any instructions to refuse to issue such licenses in Oklahoma or elsewhere until the federal law is changed."

Census Appointments.

Shawnee, Ok., Aug. 19.—C. C. Chapa of Asher, Pottawatomie county has been appointed census supervisor for the fifth district instead of the first as at first announced. The appointment was recommended by State Chairman Norris and National Committeeman Cade. It is understood that the Fourth District appointment will go to Ben H. Colbert of Tishomingo, Rough Rider and Former United States Marshal for the Ardmore district, under Roosevelt. Appointments in the First, Second and Third districts will be controlled by Republican members of congress from Oklahoma.

Headquarters for the district will probably be: First district, Guthrie; Second district, Oklahoma City; Third district, Muskogee; Fourth district, McAlester or Ardmore, and Fifth district, Chickasha.

THE MEDIATOR

By Clinton Dangerfield

(Copyright, by J. B. Lippincott Co.)

William Wallace was worthy of his name. Worthy too of the astoundingly hard skull granted by Fate, which enabled him to wipe up the ground with every other goat he met. He spent his time wandering around the X—locomotive plant, in which his owner was a superintendent.

Aside from his master, William Wallace liked Finnegan and McDougal best. It was a grief to him that his two friends hated each other. McDougal was a direct importation from the Scottish Highlands, and, far from possessing the cautiousness attributed to the canny Scot, he was belligerent as any Irishman, though he concealed this under a brow of contemptuous scorn.

Finnegan had a red head and plenty of ready wit, which last he exercised so freely on McDougal that it was a matter of conjecture among the men as to how long it would be before the two came to blows.

Finnegan's last gibe was the proverbial straw, for when asked by an indolent youth as to why he had not "pounded" the scornful Scot, Finnegan, remarking McDougal within ear-shot, observed pityingly:

"Sure, an' it's not meself would be fightin' wid a poor crathure, jist a wake or so out of pettichuts!"

McDougal approached.

"Herself will be finding out," he said, significantly, "that the Highland Closed in a Deadly Duel.

kilt covers a prettier man than ever was smoked in an Irish cabin."

"Pretty, is it?" returned Finnegan with a broad grin. "Sure it's the beauty ye are wid your—"

What personalities might have ensued were interrupted by the fortunate approach of the superintendent.

"Boys," he said—it was the meal hour—"I'd take it as a favor if as many of ye as can would turn out at the chapel to-night. Mr. Chesney—Chesney was president of the plant—will be there, and he's brought a bishop along to address us."

The chapel was a hobby with the president, and the men good-humoredly turned out en masse. The sermon was half over, the men struggling with the weariness left by a heavy day's work, when suddenly the whole congregation assumed such a pose of breathless interest that the bishop was delighted. The superintendent, indeed, showed more uneasiness than interest, but this anxiety did not trouble William Wallace, who had discovered that the side entrance was open, and who was now established within ten feet of the unconscious bishop.

McDougal, meantime, was brooding on the dire insult offered his kilt. He heard nothing of the sermon till the bishop's last words roused him.

"And now I repeat, brethren, be missionaries yourselves! Use your own force of character in breaking up every quarrel!"

McDougal nodded acquiescence, construing the advice in a way of which the good bishop little dreamed.

Two days later the Highlander inveigled Finnegan into a discarded outhouse, and, locking the door, gave the Irishman a knife, keeping one himself, and briefly informed the latter that one of them at least should not leave the room alive.

The horrified Finnegan, who had little dreamed of such a sequel to his constant jeers, glanced desperately round, but seeing no way of escape, he closed in a deadly duel.

Now, this unused building was a favorite abiding-place of William Wallace. Behind the boxes and barrels with which it was piled lay some old sacks, on which he was sleeping when this intrusion occurred. Like an inspiration, he recalled the bishop's words: "Be missionaries! Use your force of character in breaking up quarrels!" Of course! Force of character—just the thing!

With a horrible bleat, which frightened Finnegan into dropping his knife, William Wallace sprang on the combatants. Finnegan was sent headlong on the ground, and the tall Highlander was doubled over a barrel. There followed a scene which only Homer could depict, while a song of exultation thrilled through William Wallace. "Force of character! Yes—yes, the bishop knew! Burr-r-r! But!"

"Open the dhure!" screamed Finnegan, "while I do be after houldin' the dhiv! Oh, for a shlick, a shlick, to give him wan crack on th' sconce!"

"Burr-r-r!" snorted William Wallace escaping from Finnegan and bounding over the fallen boxes and barrels. "Character-r-r-r! But!"

Down went McDougal for the tenth time, and Scotland and Ireland shouted for help in tones that brought the superintendent himself and a dozen men, who burst open the door.

Discreet William Wallace! Like a shadow he sped forth, leaving the combatants to the mirth of the men.

"Her nainsell will nefer get her jaw in place from the butt of that tam goat!" moaned McDougal, holding his face and limped out, while Finnegan crawled after him.

"Och, murther!" lamented Finnegan, "it's meself as aches in more places than the hives has stars, and each place hurts worse than the other!"

An irrepressible howl of laughter from the crowd was all the consolation afforded them.

"But what the deuce," demanded the bewildered superintendent, "were you two, of all people, doing in there together? It is very strange," he added, suspiciously.

"Sure," said Finnegan, composedly, "that's soon told! We went there to find a wee, tiny box to put the Widow Murphy's pig in."

The superintendent turned to the Highlander:

"Is that straight?"

"Would herself be lying for nothing?" returned the Scot, simply, and taking Finnegan by the arm the two limped off together, their enemy forever lost in a mutual desire to plan the downfall of the mediator.

WHERE THE NIGHTS ARE LONG

More or Less Fanciful Incident Recorded from the Arctic Circle.

The long Arctic night was drawing to a close. After six months of darkness the rubicund face of Old Sol peeped shyly over the edge of the glacier and wished the frozen north a cheery good morning.

It was a glorious sight, but Mr. Ojibwosky heeded it not. He was returning from a night at the Casino club, and his mind was troubled. He had forgotten his latchkey. Alas for Mr. Ojibwosky!

He knew she was a light sleeper. Frequently she had awakened after having slept only three weeks merely at the sound of the icebergs crushing some intrepid explorer's ship in the floss. He remembered this as his none too steady footfalls crunched through the snow. She heard him as he was trying to get in through the servants' entrance in the areaway, and stuck her head out of the upper window. "Is that you Ojib," she demanded.

Mr. Ojibwosky was forced to admit that it was.

"This is a fine time to be getting home," she exclaimed. "What time is it?"

"My dear, it's only quar'er pash Febry," replied Mr. Ojibwosky, somewhat thickly, however.

But Mrs. Ojib, by consulting her calendar, was already wise to the fact that it was half-past May, and, having no desire to pry into family affairs, we will draw a veil over the scene that followed, after the manner of the good old story writers.

He Went Back to Bed.

Count Bertrand, who recently died in Paris, was a very eccentric man, and to one of his eccentricities he ascribed his long life. Once a year he would betake himself to bed and stay there for three months. On these occasions he would see no one but his servant, who brought him his meals, and even him the count forbade to speak.

Just before the Germans began the siege of Paris the nobleman went to bed, and the servant, true to his injunctions, said nothing of the events going on around him. One day the bread proved so bad the count demanded an explanation, whereby, of course, he learned that Paris was encompassed by the enemy.

Springing out of bed, the count paced the floor, repeating, "What should a Bertrand do under such circumstances?" Suddenly he stopped, exclaiming, "He should go to bed!" And to bed he went, staying there until the siege was over.

An Extravagant Wife.

A young marine officer at the Mare Island navy yard spent part of the days driving about with the daughter of the officer commanding the marine barracks in her pony cart. The young officer's Chinese boy announced one morning: "I like talk to you in your loom." (The Chinese say "I" for "I," while the Japanese say "I" for "I.")

"You mally that gal at ballacks?" The officer burst out indignantly: "What the d—l do you mean, Ah Sam?"

The Chinaman went on: "Evly day you go lide with that gal. I think pelhaps you mally that gal. I talk to cook at ballacks. You no mally that gal." Then, with great feeling: "That gal! that gal, eat seven eggs for blekfast evly morning, all same litch woman—she no litch—no! More better you no mally that gal."

Possible Explanation.

Little Willie—Say, pa, why is it the umpire of a baseball game never makes a home run?

Pa—I don't know, my son, unless it's because the crowd is too lazy to chase him.
